Mountain storm leaves snowy mantle on Timpanogos

The storm Tuesday afternoon and evening left the first snowfall of the season on top of Mt. Timpanogos. Utah Valley is expected to have daytime temperatures in the 80s through Thursday with lows dipping into the 30s. Snowfall is a sure sign that fall is on its way. Already leaves have turned to autumn colors in the canyons and in some areas are fading. Valley foliage is starting to make the change, anticipating the coming winter.

ACT:

Studies by the Utah State Office of Education have shown that the enrollment of females in math and science classes is lower than that of males. All three districts confirmed this statistic.

"We would like to focus on our math achievement among female students," Baugh said.

There is a direct relationship between taking the higher math courses and scoring well on the ACT, he added.

"I think that it is primarily a cultural value ... we don't encour-states.

Thus, the higher percentage of Utah students taking the test tends to depress the average scores for the state of Utah in comparison with other states.

The average scores of students in 1989 were higher in two of the five ACT score areas than those of students in 1988.

Utah students' scores in natural science were higher than they had been in 23 years.

Performance on the English and social studies tests was down slightly in 1989, while the composite score average remained stable be-
